Economics collections

The principal library for economics is the Bodleian Social Science Library (SSL), which has amongst its holdings the former library of the Economics Department and is now the library for taught course provision in this subject, along with first level research material and the core journal collection.

Older works and the majority of non-English language are held in the Central Bodleian and various specialist areas studies libraries and collections. The Sainsbury Library holds material relating to financial and business economics. The Radcliffe Science Library has collections relating to mathematical finance.

Nuffield College Library is the largest social science library outside of the Bodleian Libraries and holds economics collections relating to the interests of College members since 1937. Nuffield also hosts the University's Data Library which provides networked access to some key economic datasets for local users.
